Horrex is a renowned Dutch supplier of insect screens and blinds for the camper and caravan industry. Annually, over 300,000 products find their way to the end consumer through OEM's and wholesalers worldwide. Under the name VanCasco+, Horrex, part of the Driving Change Group, presents an innovative and new concept for converters of campervans.

From the new location in Vlaardingen, Horrex is planning to offer camper builders the possibility to purchase an empty (casco) van with:

1. Flush aluminium framed window systems with acrylic glass
2. Skylights with acrylic glass
3. Inno Slide, an innovative and patented slide-out system to increase the interior space
4. Horrex pleated, honeycomb and fly screen systems

By doing a part of the preparation, Horrex is able to reduce the workload of small to medium-sized camper builders. Marketing Manager Will Spaninks says: "Due to the increasing demand for campervans, delivery times are vastly running up. With VanCasco+, converters can concentrate on what they are really good at, preparing the camper according to the customer's wishes. Optionally, the camper builder can make a campervan available for partial conversion or get the aforementioned windows with combi-blinds or slide-out separately via Horrex for self-building." On the exhibition floor, an empty Fiat Ducato will be present with all the mentioned options so that visitors can see with their own eyes what this innovative concept means.

The Dutch camper builder Innova is the first partner to cooperate with Horrex. Innova is known for its exclusive campervans such as the Mercedes Sprinter Road trip 595L, a model series in luxury yacht style with length beds. On the Horrex booth the variant Mercedes Sprinter Roadtrip 595S will be shown with slide-out. Director Geert Stiphout of Innova informs: "With Inno Slide a double bed of 140 x 190 cm can be placed in the back of the camper where you can still walk around, which is unique for a bus. A different placement of the bed in combination with an extendable and very spacious bathroom also makes it possible to place extra seats and carry 4 instead of 2 passengers." Incidentally, by reducing the walking space, it is even possible to create a bed of up to 160 cm wide and 210 cm long for tall people. The demonstration van on the exhibition will also show the new extendable outdoor kitchen.

On the Horrex stand a screen with a VanCasco+ configurator will be present through which the visitor can choose the available options and determine an indicative price. The concept is expected to be available from fall 2019 for Mercedes Sprinter and Fiat Ducato L2H2 converters in the Netherlands and Belgium. More brands and models are foreseen in the future.
